President Obama Threatens to Force-Feed Pro-Abortion Healthcare Reform through Sneak Tactic

The Nation has made itself clear: America does not want President Obama's Healthcare "Reform." Citizens across the nation have displayed their objections through their voting, their political activism, and their financial support.

Despite this outrage, President Obama is determined to force-feed his radical pro-abortion agenda to the American public. With the passing of Senator Kennedy and Representative Murtha, and the pending retirement of Senator Bayh, President Obama is watching his nearly-indestructible majority dissolve before his very eyes. In a last-ditched strategy to enact his legislation anyway, the President is threatening to circumvent the traditional legislative process and instead, in a process called "Reconciliation," essentially bury the Healthcare reform in an all-or-nothing budget deal. By attaching this legislation to a budget, it can be passed with 51 votes instead of the traditional 60, cannot be amended, and is immune to filibuster--the Obamacare opponents' last effort to protect the country from this bill.

The fatal flaw in the President's proposal is the risk it poses to innocent human life. What kind of Healthcare Reform puts more lives in danger? The flaw is so grave, in fact, that the President refuses to address the issue. However, his silence cannot conceal the fact that his plan allows for Federal funding of abortion, an idea to which a majority of Americans have loudly objected. The House passed the Stupak Amendment, which protected innocent human life and American taxpayers from this gross abuse of funds. However, a similar Amendment failed to pass in the Senate. Not surprisingly, this protection-free version of Healthcare reform is what President Obama and his pro-abortion cohorts are attempting to bully America into.

A vote on the reform-masquerading-as-budget-bill is imminent. If rumors are correct, the vote will occur before the week is over. Before any promised "bi-partisan" discussions can take place. Before this sneaky tactic can make too large of a headline-splash. Before many Americans will even realize the devastating impact this will have on innocent human life.

Though we believe that we Americans have made ourselves very clear on the issue, we solicit your advocacy again: contact your Senators and Representatives and remind them: that you continue to oppose the federal funding of abortion; that you object to the President's abuse of the American voters; that you request they vote against any bill that does not explicitly exclude the federal funding of abortions; and that by way of your votes, you will enact consequences on them if they assist him in railroading this country. For those whose Senators and Representatives have committed to doing the right thing, voice your support, encouragement and gratitude. Either way, remind your delegates that pro-life Americans are paying attention, and that we will not be sidelined as the most radically pro-death President in our nation's history continues to play fast and loose with our votes, our freedom, and the lives of the pre-born, the disabled, and the elderly.
